Yet the twinkling stars shall be extinct and the sun shall become pale still, and the moon shall become pale still, and the sun which rose so splendid in the morning is fastened to the place of his going down, will be long go out in eternal night.
And the earth fitted up for a temporary purpose, lik an outworn garment will be laid aside.
And the wheels of time which have been rolling on with uninterrupted velocity, will at length become permanently fixed in eternity.
